

At Close of Day follows the intricate unraveling and ultimate restoration of a modern family after their aging father lets slip a secret he has held close for more than fifty years. Reeling from the implications of their father's confession, Hugh Morris's grown children face the trauma of rewriting their family's history, and their future, now that the secret has come to light.

The speaker opens the poem with this phrase, saying, "Do not go gentle into that good night,/ Old age should burn and rave at close of day;/ Rage, rage against the dying of the light."

When I heard at the close of the day how my name had been receiv'd with plaudits in the capitol, still it was not a happy night for me that follow'd. I have met them at close of day. Coming with vivid faces. From counter or desk among grey. Eighteenth-century houses. I have passed with a nod of the head. Do not go gentle into that good night,. Old age should burn and rave at close of day;. Rage, rage against the dying of the light. Though wise men at their end.

Old age should burn and rave at close of day; Rage, rage against the dying of the light. Though wise men at their end know dark is right.

Quote #1. Old age should burn and rave at close of day; (line 2). It's pretty obvious from this line that the speaker thinks the elderly should fight death with all their
